Richmond VA (February 10, 2009): National Medical Logistics (NML) of Richmond, VA has been selected by Healthcare Supply Solutions (HSS) to assist with selecting, designing and establishing a new state of the art 50,000 square foot distribution center in Jacksonville, FL. This HSS facility is strategically located near one of the country's fastest growing sea ports and will provide master distribution services to healthcare manufacturers and distributors alike. HSS services are designed to reduce order cycle times, inventory investments and operating/logistics expenses associated with managing the healthcare supply chain.

As part of the project, NML assisted in evaluating and selecting the optimal distribution center location and facility, developing warehouse layouts and office space plans, establishing enterprise resource planning systems requirements [ERP] and managing a warehouse equipment RFP process. The result of these activities will help HSS establish a world class distribution business.

According to Scott Tubandt, HSS President, "Due to the project's scope we felt that we would benefit by having a qualified external entity help with the design, build and launch effort. We chose National Medical Logistics because of their broad based healthcare distribution experience, objectivity, and a clear understanding of the industry nuances."
