Richmond, VA: National Medical Logistics (NML) announced today that they have been selected by University Hospitals Health System (UHHS) in Cleveland, Ohio to assist with the planning and execution of several supply chain initiatives. NML will work with the 8 hospitals in the system to:

- Evaluate, select and implement a PAR inventory automation process;
- Develop and implement a cross dock strategy involving their distributor partner to streamline receiving;
- Establish distribution performance metrics and associated goals;
- Provide distribution management expertise to improve supply chain partnership performance, including maximizing savings associated with group purchasing.

According to Steve Standley, Senior VP Supply Chain for UHHS, "NML provides UHHS outstanding Supply Chain support on implementing key strategic initiatives across our entire system, and does it as a partner with our department(s) we especially like that they are industry neutral distribution experts who deliver strategic planning while simultaneously implementing the details."

About University Hospitals Health System

University Hospitals Health System serves patients at more than 150 locations throughout northern Ohio. The System offers the region's largest network of primary care physicians, outpatient centers and hospitals and includes a network of specialty care physicians, skilled nursing, elder health, behavioral health, rehabilitation and home care services, managed care and insurance programs and occupational health and wellness.

The Health System's tertiary medical center, University Hospitals of Cleveland (UHC), is ranked by U.S. News & World Report as one of America's best hospitals in 14 medical and surgical specialties. UHC, an affiliate of Case Western Reserve University, is home to some of the most prestigious clinical and research centers of excellence in the nation and the world. Together, they form the largest center for biomedical research in the State of Ohio.

Nearly 25,000 physicians and employees comprise University Hospitals Health System and its partner hospitals, ranking it northern Ohio's second largest employer.
